

Fairy Tale-Inspired Fun!

Once Upon a Goat

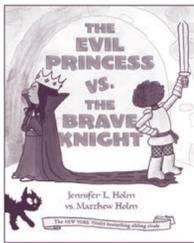

Goldilocks for Dinner

The Evil Princess vs. the Brave Knight

FAIRY TALE—INSPIRED FUN! EDUCATORS' GUIDE

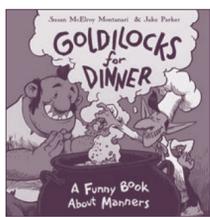

About the Books

The Evil Princess vs. the Brave Knight
Jennifer L. Holm;
illustrated by Matthew Holm

She casts terrible spells, while he fights dragons. No wonder there isn't much peace in this kingdom! Their constant fighting leaves us wondering, will these siblings ever JUST GET ALONG?

Grades: PreK-2
HC: 978-1-5247-7134-8
GLB: 978-1-5247-7135-5
EL: 978-1-5247-7136-2

Goldilocks for Dinner
Susan McElroy Montari;
illustrated by Jake Parker

Classic fairy tales meet tongue-in-cheek humor in this hilarious read-aloud about a goblin and a troll who set out to find the rudest child of all and teach her some manners!

Grades: PreK-3
F&P Level: N • Lexile: AD540L
HC: 978-0-399-55235-9
GLB: 978-0-399-55236-6
EL: 978-0-399-55237-3

Once Upon a Goat
Dan Richards;
illustrated by Eric Barclay

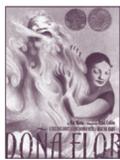

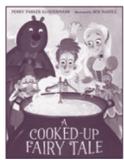

A twisted fairy tale about a king and queen who wish for a child of their own . . . and end up with a baby goat.

Grades: PreK-2
F&P Level: N
HC: 978-1-5247-7374-8
GLB: 978-1-5247-7375-5
EL: 978-1-5247-7376-2

Pre-Reading Activity: Favorite Fairy Tale Survey

Fairy tales have been told and written down for millennia. In recent years they have also appeared in movies and on television. Ask students to fill out the Favorite Fairy Tale Survey reproducible, and then find at least three friends or family members to survey. Each student can create a large poster or you can compile responses on the board, including the names of the people surveyed, their ages, the title of their favorite fairy tale, and its country of origin, if known. After the data is collected, analyze which tales are most popular. Discuss why people like a particular tale, where fairy tales are typically encountered, and the different iterations of fairy tales across cultures. Have students use the data to create a graph.

More Fun Fairy Tales!

Art © 2019 by Eric Barclay

RHTeachersLibrarians.com

RHCBEducators

The Random School House

CLASSROOM ACTIVITIES

Design Your Own Fairy Tale Castle or Village

Two of the stories are set in castles, while the third is set in an old-fashioned village. Have students imagine that they are creating a setting for a fairy tale, which takes place in either a castle or a village. Students should consider what elements they would like in the setting, such as a drawbridge for the castle or a blacksmith shop for the village. Students may want to do some research about medieval castles or villages before they begin. They should then draw and color the outside and inside of the castle or the layout of the village, including labels to identify various parts or buildings.

What Makes It Funny?

Once Upon a Goat is funny from cover to cover. As a class, discuss the elements that can add humor to a picture book, such as illustrations, words and phrases, and plot twists. Talk about how this story differs from traditional fairy tales. Assign students to small groups in which they will analyze the humor in the book and come up with twenty specific examples of art or writing that they consider funny.

Fairy Tale Theater

Fairy tales are perfect for readers' theaters because they typically have strong plots and a variety of characters. Ask students to divide into groups and perform one of the three books or a traditional fairy tale. They should rewrite the story so it is mostly dialogue, including the part of a narrator to set the scene and help make transitions. Students can perform the story for classmates.

What's Next for the Evil Princess and the Brave Knight?

Invite students to imagine that the Evil Princess and the Brave Knight are going on a quest outside of their castle. Using the storyboard graphic organizer reproducible, students should write a story about that quest, adding new characters (possibly animals or monsters) and describing the new setting. Have students share the stories in small groups, noting similarities and differences.

Find the Folklore

In Goldilocks for Dinner, the story and illustrations contain a number of references to folktales and nursery rhymes. Working in small groups, have students make a list of as many references as they can find. Then have students each choose a nursery rhyme not used in Goldilocks for Dinner, decide where a reference to it could go, and create a drawing to demonstrate. For example, Little Boy Blue could be blowing his horn on one of the hills behind the village.

This guide was prepared by Kathleen Odean, a former school librarian who gives workshops on new children's and young adult books. She chaired the 2002 Newbery Award committee and served on the 1996 Caldecott Award committee.

Random House Children's Books · School and Library Marketing · 1745 Broadway · New York, NY 10019 · 05/19

Art © 2019 by Eric Barclay

Name _____

FAVORITE FAIRY TALES: A SURVEY

Name: _____

Age: _____

Title of favorite fairy tale: _____

Country of origin, if known: _____

Where you first heard it, read it, or saw it: _____

Five-sentence summary of tale: _____

Why you like it: _____

Art © 2019 by Eric Barclay

Art © 2019 by Jake Parker

rhcbbooks.com

Educators: Reproduce this activity sheet for students.

Name _____

STORYBOARD YOUR STORY

Use the space provided to organize your story before you write it. List the characters and describe the setting. For the plot, decide on the beginning, middle, and end, and then add details for each section. The middle of your story will have the most content and the most details.

Story Title: _____ by _____

Characters

Setting

PLOT

Beginning → Details

Middle → Details

→ Details

→ Details

End → Details

rhcbbooks.com

Educators: Reproduce this activity sheet for students.

Art © 2019 by Eric Barclay

Art © 2019 by Jennifer L. Holm and Matthew Holm